I-10 bus crash claims life

ALEA RELEASE

LOXLEY — At least one person is dead and several more injured when a charter bus carrying high school students from Texas ran off the road near the Wilcox exit of Interstate 10 Tuesday morning.

According to a release issued by the Alabama Law Enforcement Agency, at 5:33 a.m. Tuesday, March 13, a tour bus carrying students from Channelview, Texas, was traveling west on Interstate 10 when it left the roadway, traveled into the median and down an embankment.

The crash occurred approximately three miles east of Wilcox near the 57 mile marker and landed in a ravine on Cowpen Creek in the Wilcox community.

More than 20 people were injured in the crash, according to reports. Killed in the crash was the bus driver, 65-year-old Harry Caligone of Houston.

"Harry was a long-time driver for our company and we are deeply saddened for this loss," according to a statement released Tuesday by First Class Tours of Houston, the company that owns the charter bus. "We offer our heartfelt condolences to his family.

"Our prayers are with the injured and their families at this time. We pledge our assistance in cooperating with local authorities in the investigation."

There were nearly 50 people on board the bus at the time of the crash, including band members and teachers from Channelview High School in Texas. The group was reportedly returning from a trip to Disneyworld at the time of the crash. Another bus carrying students and teachers continued on to Houston, according to reports.

"Our thoughts and prayers go out to our students, employees, and families that have been affected by this tragedy," according to a statement issued Tuesday by the Channelview Independent School District. "We are aware of numerous injuries. We are now focused on getting everyone back safely to our community.

"We are extremely grateful for the first responders, hospital employees, and volunteers from churches and schools in Alabama and Florida that have stepped up to help our students and comfort them though this difficult situation. Those communities have opened their hearts and arms to our children and employees. They have provided resources, support, and a safe and welcoming environment while we work through the

Baldwin County, Gulf Shores school split goes to Montgomery

No decision yet from state superintendent

By CLIFF MCCOLLUM
cliff@gulfcoastmedia.com

Teams from the Baldwin County School System and Gulf Shores City School System met with Alabama Department of Education officials Tuesday in Montgomery as a part of the mediation process for the split between the two school systems.

The Baldwin Times was the only media on site for the meeting, held at State Superintendent Ed Richardson's office in Montgomery, but was not allowed inside the nearly two-hour meeting for the discussion.

Upon leaving, both sides said they had no comment as Richardson had placed them under a gag order to keep them from discussing what had gone on in the meeting.

Based on previous press releases and statements, a likely topic of discussion during the meeting with Richardson was the continued contention between Baldwin County and Gulf Shores over the official start date for the new Gulf Shores city system.

"I called last week to set up an appointment to talk with State Superintendent Dr. Ed Richardson, asking him to take up the disagreement on the start date," Baldwin County Superintendent Eddie Tyler said in a Feb. 14 press release. "I spoke with Dr. Richardson yesterday during

Blues Festival returns to Stapleton Elementary

By ALLISON MARLOW
allisonm@gulfcoastmedia.com

Next month as summer break hovers just over the horizon, sixth graders at Stapleton Elementary will soulfully perform the "Homework Blues."

And though they may be lamenting six more weeks til summer, they are overjoyed to be a centerpiece of a new community tradition.

The sixth grade band is helping to usher in a new era of a local tradition. Stapleton School is reviving the annual Blues Festival, held in the town for decades until about 15 years ago.

When principal Jim Perry came to the school he realized that more fundraisers were needed to cover the most critical needs.

As the smallest elementary school in Baldwin County, serving less than 200 students, families could only carry the weight of so many fundraisers.

The traditional concert would be a delight for the community and benefit the school.

"It seemed like something we could manage," Perry said. "It really seemed like a win-win."

So far the festival is a grand slam. Corporate donors have pushed the school over its fundraising goal of $4,000 and brought in over $6,000. The amount includes a donation of $2,500 by the Poarch Creek Indians and another $1,000 donation from North Baldwin Utilities.

Students created the artwork for the festival logo and parents and community volunteers have stepped up to donate time and energy to the project

"It's really been embraced by our town," Perry said. "A lot of people have helped to make this happen."

The tiny, unincorporated area has always been a tight-knit

Outdoor Conditions Report: The "official" start of spring is also known as the vernal equinox. This year, it happens officially on Tuesday, March 20th at 11:15 A.M. The days are getting longer, the weather is getting warmer (or at least on average it should be) and the fishing is heating up as well.

In the past few weeks I have mentioned sheepshead as a main target of anglers during the months of February and March. "Sheepies" can be seen as the fish that kicks off the spring fishing season and action has slowly been picking up at the Gulf State Pier as well as other nearshore structure such as jetties and oil and natural gas rigs.

As an additional bonus, some early spanish and even KING mackerel have been showing up at the pier. However, sharks have also been a problem, getting to the hooked fish before they can be hoisted out of the water and up to the pier deck.

Check with your favorite local Baldwin County tackle shop for the latest conditions and if you are heading out there, good luck and be safe!

Raised bed gardening in the South

By ROBBIE CALK
News.aces.edu

BALDWIN'S Bounty

AUBURN, Ala. — Raised bed gardens are different from regular gardens. They are an activity for the entire family, and they are a great way to spend time outdoors.

"Raised beds have taken gardening to a new level for many people," said Tim Crow, a home grounds regional Extension agent located in Cullman County. "It's a chance to have success in the garden for people who enjoy home-grown vegetables and who do not want to commit to large-scale gardens."

Most plants can grow in raised bed gardens. All vegetable and small fruit plants can grow as well, but of course, the size of the garden decides what can grow.

"In the summer months, the gardener could grow tomatoes, peppers, squash, cucumbers, eggplants and corn," he said. "Gardeners can grow any vegetable in a raised bed. In the cool season months, we grow more of our leafy vegetables like cabbages, lettuce, kale, broccoli and cauliflower plants," Crow added.

Raised Bed Gardening Tips

Plant spacing in a raised bed garden has the same importance as plant spacing in regular ground plantings.

"To maximize production of plants, proper spacing gives them the best chance to produce and not compete with too many root systems trying to do the same thing," Crow added.

Raised bed gardens thrive anywhere. However, strategic placing in one's yard depends on what a gardener plans to grow.

"Any area receiving six to eight hours of direct sunlight suits vegetable plants," he said. "Make sure there is a water source nearby for watering. Shady areas are beneficial for ornamental plants that require certain hours of shade per day."

Sizes of beds vary, but the average bed size is four by eight feet and 12 inches deep.

"Raised beds can be constructed from numerous products," said Crow. Wood, stones and metal products easily construct the beds."

Another difference of raised bed gardens is the type of soil used. Since the growing medium is easily controlled, it creates ideal growing conditions.

"Vermiculite, perlite, peat moss and mini pine bark nuggets make for a good soil mix," he said. There are commercially-produced products containing these mixtures, and local stores sell these mixtures.

Proper care of raised gardens is imperative to ensure a long-lasting gardening experience.

"Make sure materials are staying together," Crow said. "Wood products can begin to rot over time. When using stones, make sure they are stable and secure the structure, and replace pieces over time that need repair."

All in all, container gardening is reasonably inexpensive and can produce a lot of produce for a small family.

"My children love to plant and keep it up," he said. "It can give children a garden that is more proportionate to their scale, and they enjoy spending time in it."

March For Our Lives is March 24

Submitted

My Community Mentors, a program to help at risk kids, is joining boys and girls across the nation for gun reform, "March for Our Lives" and #NeverAgain. On Saturday, March 24 the Baldwin County group will join with Pensacola's RMM Entertainment in Foley to draw attention to the violence in schools and ways to alleviate gun violence to keep children safe.

The event will begin at 8 a.m. at the My Community Mentors office at 314 E. Laurel in Foley, travel east on Highway 98 to Pecan Street and then south to Beulah Heights Park, 809 E. Jefferson Ave. The rest of the day will include nine entertainers, guest speakers, lunch and a bouncer house for the kids. The music will include positive rap music suitable for all ages.

After the shooting in Florida, My Community Mentors President Louis Pope thought the kids needed to speak out. They want to tell legislators that they want gun ownership to be more accountable, to enact laws that will keep them safe when they are in school.

The program was put together by survivors of the Stoneman Douglas shooting to make sure the national outrage in the wake of the shooting translates into real action.

"This event will bring more awareness of the child's viewpoint, to speak what's on their minds," Pope says.

After turning his life around while incarcerated, Pope is working with boys and girls at his mentoring office in Foley, located next door to his barber shop.

They spend quality time hearing how they are not just a number, but how they can be a positive member of the community. He teaches honesty, integrity, wisdom and family values to achieve their goals. "It's a hand up; not a hand out," says Pope.

Currently about 60 kids are participating in five basketball teams. They participated in a tournament in Panama City on March 10 and will be playing in others, including one at Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

SUBMITTED PHOTO

Recently the group has added English and math tutors and a grant writer. Field trips are planned for summer fun. Family events are planned for parents to see what the boys and girls are accomplishing. Pope says adults need to spend more time with the kids, to pass on positive family traditions.

He says children need to care about themselves, that education comes first, with rewards coming through sports and other activities.

Those who wish to give a hand up to boys and girls at risk, contact mycommunitymentor@gmail.com or call Crystal, 251-295-6710 or Louis Pope, 850- 549-5770 Louis Pope.

community.

Beverly Broadus, who attended Stapleton Elementary and worked in the front office for 25 years closes her eyes and pictures the Blues Festival scene from decades past.

"All the people were sitting on blankets, couples would get up and dance, it makes me cry thinking about it," she said.

Today she volunteers to teach in the afterschool program and is often working with the children of the children who attended the school when she worked there.

"This is a really special place," she said.

Originally the festival was used to raise money to support the town's ballpark. Perry said the small community works together so often that he knew they would come together to revive the event.

Last year's fall festival was a joint event hosted by the school and two churches whose properties nuzzle up to that of the school's.

The school's gym is used in the after-hours by local fitness classes and many students host their birthdays on the playground on weekends.

"We've embraced the idea that this is a community asset," Perry said. "The school and the churches are really the heart of this community."

Funds raised by the festival will help Stapleton School build a science, technology, engineering, arts and mathematics lab in one of the historic buildings on campus.

Ultimately, Perry said, the school also wants to add an outdoor classroom to take advantage of the gorgeous oak grove that sits behind the school.

Both the band and students in the afterschool guitar program have been practicing daily to take their turn on the Blues Festival stage.

They say they are excited to play for family and friends, excited to be on stage. But most of all, they are looking forward to helping out the place they call home.

"We really need more equipment," said third grader and guitarist Hailey Floyd. "We need to raise money to make that happen. It's a really good school."

Orange Beach Fire Department

By CRYSTAL COLE
crystal@gulfcoastmedia.com

The City of Orange Beach's growth may be on fire, but not much else is thanks to the work of its dedicated fire fighters.

All Orange Beach Fire Department personnel receive specialized training in conditions and disciplines firefighters encounter during the course of their duties that are unique to the area they serve. The department's training regimen ensures that personnel are prepared for incidents that include fire suppression, vehicle extrication, SWAT Medic, high angle rope rescue operations, "Back Country Trail" rescues, marine and PWC operations, underwater dive and surf rescues in the Gulf of Mexico.

After a year of serving as interim Orange Beach fire chief, Justin Pearce was officially appointed to the post by the City Council on Tuesday, Feb. 20.

A career firefighter in Orange Beach, Pearce started as a cadet for the department in 1995 after a chance ride in the city's Mardi Gras parade. Pearce said it's been amazing to see the department as well as the city grow over the last two decades. As a cadet, he said, the department only had two firefighters, a chief and one fire station.

Today, there are four fire stations, the fire administration building and roughly 70 personnel, including full-time and part-time firefighters, administration staff, and resident firefighters that are part of the department-run rookie school. The department handled 2,860 calls in 2017.

The mission of the training division is to provide the City of Orange Beach with highly trained, effective and professional fire fighters. Training is one of the single most important functions of the modern fire service. Over the years, the fire service has become more mentally challenging and the demands for knowledge by firefighters has steadily increased.

The training division consists of the training battalion chief and a training officer, and is responsible for the development, delivery, administration and documentation of training programs. This includes on-going training and professional development for existing department members, and initial training of firefighter recruits. This is achieved by furnishing a disciplined environment conducive to learning and providing professional training and instruction to our students.

As one of the regional training centers of the Alabama Fire College, Orange Beach Fire Rescue has the opportunity of training firefighters advanced courses, including fire officer, fire instructor, fire inspector, fire investigator and more. Past students have represented departments from throughout Alabama, across the country and around the world (the Middle East, Japan, Great Britain and beyond).

HOROSCOPES

WEEK OF MARCH 19, 2018

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) With your practical side dominant this week, it's a good time to reassess your finances to see what expenses you can cut. Aspects also favor mending fraying relationships.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your Bovine-inspired determination to follow matters through from beginning to end pays off in a big way. Enjoy a well-earned weekend of fun with a special someone.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Aspects favor re-establishing business relationships you might have neglected. A family member's request needs to be given more thought before you make a decision.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) While you might appreciate the avalanche of advice coming from others, keep in mind that the intuitive Moon Child is best served by listening to her or his own inner voice.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The Lion's social life whirls at centrifugal speed this week as you go from function to function. Things slow by week's end, giving you a chance to catch up on your chores.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Don't let your stand on an issue cause a rift with a colleague. Insist on both of you taking time to reassess your positions while there's still room for compromise.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) An opportunity you'd been hoping for finally opens up. But read the fine print before you make a commitment, especially where a time factor might be involved.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your need to know what's going on behind the scenes leads you to make some bold moves. Be prepared with a full explanation of your actions if necessary.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A lot of details need tending to during the early part of the week. The pressure eases midweek, allowing you to get back to your major undertaking.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A friend asks you to act on their behalf in a dispute. Be careful. You might not have all the facts you need in order to make a fair assessment of the situation.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A new development might require you to cancel some of your plans. But you adapt easily, and by week's end, you could receive welcome "cheering-up" news.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Your recent workplace accomplishments boost your self-confidence just as you're about to consider a potentially rewarding, although possibly risky, career move.

Trump's tariffs a political gamble

By TODD STACY

The American economy is going gangbusters. A new report shows that more than 313,000 new jobs were added to the economy in February. That's a seriously solid number and the highest monthly jobs gain in almost two years. Also, the unemployment rate remains at a 17-year low of 4.1 percent.

A surging economy is generally good for incumbents. Republicans who hold majorities in Congress are counting on that to be true going into the 2018 midterm elections in which Democrats are more motivated than ever. With the tax cuts just now kicking in and the clear upward economic momentum, the GOP shouldn't have a problem, right?

Not so fast. The man leading the Republican Party might have put a lot of that economic progress at risk this past week by giving in to his protectionist tendencies.

Despite pleadings against it from conservatives, President Donald Trump on Thursday followed through on his threat to place tariffs on imported steel and aluminum. Beginning later this month, the United States will levy a 25 percent tariff on imported steel and a 10 percent tariff on imported aluminum. Canada and Mexico are exempt for now, and other countries can apply to have their tariff taken away, the president said.

The action is taken in response to other countries, particularly China, dumping cheap steel and aluminum into the North American market and, thus, making it harder for domestic companies to compete.

There's no question China has acted aggressively to take over the steel market. The Chinese now produce more than half the world's steel, while the U.S. produces roughly five percent. However, many question whether tariffs are the best way to deal with China's aggression. In combative terms, tariffs are sometimes described as shooting at your enemy while stabbing yourself. Sure, you might hurt the enemy, but not without inflicting some serious damage on yourself.

Imposing tariffs means that more in the manufacturing industry will purchase their steel and aluminum from American companies like U.S. Steel and Nucor — both of whom have a significant presence in Alabama. That's good news for those companies and the workers employed there, at least in the short term.

It's not good news for those on down the supply chain, where manufactures will be forced to pay more for raw materials and consumers will be forced to pay more for steel and aluminum goods. Just this past week, Hyundai, which is responsible for several thousand auto manufacturing jobs in Central Alabama, said the tariffs could negatively impact its production. They are not saying so explicitly, but you have to imagine the same is true for other Alabama auto manufacturers. And, don't forget we just inked a deal to build one of the biggest car plants in the world in Huntsville.

Threatening existing jobs while making consumer products more expensive is a surefire way to slow down a surging economy. That's why many supply-side conservatives have advocated dealing with China by other means less harmful to our own interests.

Back in 2008, President George W. Bush announced the United States' intent to join and begin to lead the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP), a trade agreement among 11 nations surrounding the Pacific Ocean. The idea was to form mutually-beneficial trade relationships with countries from South America to Asia, all while blocking out China from further growing its manufacturing and agricultural influence.

After years of negotiations, the United States left Japan, Australia, Canada, Chile, New Zealand and all the other TPP countries at the altar. Fear-monger politics put the proposal on life support in Congress in 2016, and President Trump delivered the final death knell last year by officially withdrawing our country's participation.

So it was with some irony that, on the day Trump announced his tariffs, the 11-nation Trans-Pacific Partnership signed a new trade agreement without the United States as the lead partner. Also, it looks like the other countries are now opening the door to China joining the trade group. So, the TPP, which was conceived as a way to gain a competitive advantage over China, could conceivably give China a competitive advantage over us. Nothing like beginning a trade war by shooting ourselves in the foot.

Many conservatives see these developments as major missteps that could threaten our country's economic progress and, in turn, Republicans' control of Congress. They are hoping the "Art of the Deal" president is simply using this as a stick to prod the Chinese and others countries into some kind of negotiation, like he seems to have done with North Korea.

We'll see if that's true. Either way, it's a gamble, and the stakes couldn't be much higher.

Kudos to county residents' response to I-10 bus crash

Tuesday morning's bus crash on I-10 near Loxley was a horrendous event that we hope doesn't happen again.

With one confirmed death of the bus driver and numerous confirmed injuries among the Channelview High School band students in the crash, the collective thoughts and prayers of Baldwin County's residents will continue for a while.

While this was a horrible tragedy, we once again try to find ways to look for some good, some sort of positivity to come from this.

And we found it yesterday.

Our sheriff's deputies and other law enforcement and first responders were immediately on the scene to offer aid and assistance in the scene.

Hospitals and care centers from across the region opened their doors and took as many injured as they could.

Daphne's Coastal Church opened its doors as a reunification center for students and their families traveling from Houston.

Gulf Shores' band directors, who know something of tragedy themselves after last year's Mardi Gras parade accident, were on the scene to talk with and comfort those kids.

Posts across social media called for gas cards - and every single one of them were answered by multiple messages saying "Got it" or "What more can we do?"

Fairhope band parents gathered clothing donations for injured students and others being helped at Thomas Hospital.

It says something about our county that when the worst happens near us, we as a community spring into action and do whatever we can to help.

It is a blessing and a source of pride that people here go into helper mode without a single thought - they just act and try to do whatever needs to be done.

We are proud to live in a community like this one who always steps up to help in times of need.

Take pride in yourself today, Baldwin County.

You've answered the call for help and gone above and beyond, just like you always do.

Look into the fire

DAVID ATWOOD
Points of the Compass

From the flicker of a candle's flame in a backpacker's folding lantern to the freight train roar of a conflagration racing down a mountain, I have seen some fires. Each evokes an emotion. I have felt adrenalin fueled terror and hypnotically induced sleep, hellish heat and embracing warmth. Fire is an adventure.

Last week, we had the church youth group over for a bonfire. That was the activity. They wanted a bonfire. It made me wonder why. What intrigues us about fire?

Bonfire is defined as a large outdoor fire for the purpose of burning garbage, or as part of a celebration, or a signal. We did not use ours for burning garbage, although Princess the Younger took the occasion to burn her math papers from last semester. I guess that falls more into celebration than garbage burning. In the course of her celebrating, she managed to throw her "Student of the Month" certificate onto the flames. Fire is indiscriminate in its destruction or its ability to give comfort. It is just fire.

We had two fires going that night. One was the bonfire contained in a brick fire ring, roaring and reaching high into the night sky. The other was much smaller, contained in a metal fire ring on the brick patio. I watched both carefully for safety, and out of curiosity. I wanted to see who went to which.

The larger fire had its adherents, mostly male, mostly wanting to jump through the flames. Boys…what are you going do? Girls stood back and watched, making no comment about the silliness of boys. I wondered as to their silence at such a blatant show of machismo. Humankind had its beginnings in a tribal society where the strongest of the males were first choice as mates, possibly judged by who could jump through the fire best. The boys and girls were unwittingly playing out a thousand-of-years-old instinct. Fire evokes a primal stirring in us.

The smaller fire drew the largest group. I wondered if it felt safer, or if people gathered there because of the food that was to be cooked over it. As the evening progressed, all held sticks impaling hot dogs, and later, marshmallows to be used in another ancient fire tradition, the making of S'mores. No one jumped over this one. The bonfire was neglected and burned down to ashes. The smaller fire, the campfire, was nourished and fretted over for the duration of the activity. Afterward, it found the Admiral and me standing around it, gathering the last of its waning warmth.

I am amazed at the comfort a campfire gives. Even on the hottest of summer nights, when warmth is not needed, we start a fire. In our primal brains, we see it drive back the relentless dark and keep imagined, or real, evils at bay. When we leave the circle of the fire, we are ever anxious to return to its embrace.

The Admiral told me how much she appreciated my safety precautions. I had shovels, buckets, and a water charged hose, all within reach. I worried if that would be enough should the fire decide to leap its restraints and bound to the trees nearby. She has not seen how fast fire can move when out of control. I had. I do not recall ever being as frightened as when hurricane winds rushed by me toward the advancing fire, sucking all the oxygen out of the air to feed itself, killing everything in its path.

Fire evokes emotion. Whether it is warmth and comfort of a flickering flame, or the terror of an out of control blaze, we cannot escape its charm and potential. We have learned to harness its energy and use it everyday in so many ways. It is our friend, bringing comfort while at the same time, our enemy, containing the potential for mass destruction. A tool and a weapon all in the strike of a match. Such gives one pause.

World War II Homefront to be subject of University of Mobile lecture March 22

MOBILE — Award-winning historian and author Charles C. Bolton will deliver a lecture titled "World War II Home Front Mobilization in the Deep South: An Assault on Jim Crow" as this year's installment of University of Mobile's Billy G. Hinson Lecture Series.

According to Dr. Lonnie Burnett, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at UM and director of the lecture series, Bolton will examine the effect of military and economic mobilization in Mobile and surrounding areas and how it challenged traditional social relations – often leading to conflict. Of particular concern will be federal policies that, while not directly attacking racial segregation, placed southern racial practices into stark relief and provided an opening for challenges to the racial status quo of the Deep South.

The talk will be held Thursday, March 22 at 7 p.m. in Ram Hall on the University of Mobile campus. The program, which includes the lecture and a book signing, is free and open to the public.

Currently professor of history and associate dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of North Carolina Greensboro, Bolton received his Ph.D. from Duke University. He is the author of several books, including William F. Winter and the New Mississippi: A Biography (2013); The Hardest Deal of All: The Battle over School Integration in Mississippi, 1870-1980 (2005); and Poor Whites of the Antebellum South: Tenants and Laborers in Central North Carolina and Northeast Mississippi (1994).

Bolton's honors include the McLemore Prize and Willie D. Halsell Prize of the Mississippi Historical Society, and the 2009 Public Humanities Scholar Award from the Mississippi Humanities Council. In 2000, he was given the Award of Merit for the radio documentary, "Mississippi Voices: A Trip through the Twentieth Century."

Now in its 13th year, the Billy G. Hinson Lecture Series was established by the University of Mobile College of Arts and Sciences to present academic programs dealing with major topics in American history. The series is named in honor of Dr. Billy Hinson, long-time history professor at the university. For more information, contact Dr. Burnett at 251.442.2319 or lburnett@umobile.edu.

Where the green beer flows

St. Patrick's Day comes to Baldwin County

By ALLISON MARLOW
allisonm@gulfcoastmedia.com

Dublin Down Irish Band performs twice this weekend. Friday at Flora-Bama and Saturday at Papa Rocco's.

Green beer and authentic Irish music will flow at McSharry's Irish Pub in Fairhope.

SUBMITTED PHOTOS

Papa Rocco's Pub Crawl begins at 9:30 a.m. Saturday.

Ladies, if you're heading to McSharry's Irish Pub on the greenest of holidays to purr to the sound of owner Ronan McSharry's authentic Irish lilt, you're going to have to wait in line.

And, you may not hear him say more than four words: "What will you have?"

On St. Patrick's Day McSharry and his staff have little time for small talk as they pour more than 1,300 pints of green-tinted Miller Lite. And those drinks will be just a fraction of what the staff serves during the annual 17-hour long holiday shift.

The pub has hosted one of the largest St. Patrick's Day celebrations on the Eastern Shore for more than a decade. This year in addition to the green beer, McSharry's staff has 18 kegs of Guinness on hand, an authentic Irish band and DJ Seamus to round out the wee hours of the celebration.

McSharry, who hails from Sligo, Ireland, came to the U.S. 20 years ago and moved first to New York City. Nearly 10 years later, a girlfriend introduced him to Fairhope and urged him to open a pub.

The relationship fizzled but the pub popped. Now it's a touchstone for all things Irish on the Eastern Shore and has the longest running, weekly traditional Irish music session on the Gulf Coast.

St. Patrick's Day is their Super Bowl.

The 10 staffers work 17 hours on their feet, often wrenching their backs as they spin between the pub's courtyard window and bar.

"It's like the bartenders are playing Twister moving between the two," McSharry said. "They are like camels. They are rested and fed because they are not going to get to eat and they'll be lucky if they get to go to the bathroom the entire day.

"It's amazing," McSharry said. "It doesn't matter what race, color or creed you are. Everyone here drinks on St. Patrick's Day.

"We call it amateur drinking day because even people who don't drink will stop in and have a beer," he said. "It's just a holiday that everyone comes out for."

And St. Patrick's Day in Ireland? It's just as jovial, McSharry said.

"It always huge and it always falls in the middle of Lent. Most people give up drinking for Lent but they're allowed to drink on St. Patrick's Day.

"We get up, go to Mass, have a parade and drink the whole day," McSharry said. "The church, they kind of turn a blind eye."

The South may have embraced the spirit of the Emerald Isle, but it doesn't mean everyone understands it.

When McSharry first moved south, he introduced himself. Quickly after, his new friends insisted on hearing his "real" Irish name.

Um.

But, like many a quick-witted Irishman before him, McSharry assured them that his "real" Irish name was Seamus McGillicutty.

Oh yeah. Now that, that was a totally Irish name, they said.

McSharry laughs and assures us that DJ Seamus will be on hand to spin tunes after Irish band, Nafianna, Gaelic for "The Soldiers," calls it a night.

And ladies, you might just get McSharry all to yourselves on any other Sunday night of the year.

But not the day after St. Patrick's Day. That day McSharry and his staff, well, they'll be enjoying a well-deserved sleep.

The Rut. That infamous time of year where bucks seem to throw caution to the wind in pursuit of the doe; and for the whitetail hunter, it never seems to arrive soon enough.

Ironically, according to Wikipedia, the actual word "rut" derived from the Latin word "rugire" which means to roar. This is very fitting. It is defined as the mating season of mammals and is characterized in males by an increase in testosterone, exaggerated sexual dimorphisms, and increased aggression and interest in females. What does this mean? Basically, this surge of hormones drives the buck to do all sorts of things to entice the females such as marking themselves with mud to be more visually appealing and soaking themselves in their own urine to smell extra sexy. Hey, whatever works!

Being privy to the signs of the rutting period can help the whitetail hunter take full advantage of this special season. Predicting exactly when the rut will begin is somewhat of a craps shoot, however, it is typically triggered by shorter day lengths and dictated by the average gestation period of the doe. It is optimum for doe to have their offspring when the temperatures are warmer and new green growth has appeared thereby providing food for them so they can provide milk for their young.

Prior to the rut, deer are very food-driven. Does will be found in family groups and bucks can be found congregating with each other at food sources. Once they begin their estrus (breeding) cycle bucks will become increasingly territorial and start breaking off from their bachelor groups. They start moving more in the day thus throwing caution to the wind.

As full rut commences, the bucks increase their range in search of receptive does and in an attempt to herd estrus does together. They rub their antlers on trees to attract the ladies and to warn other bucks to stay away. They make scrapes on the ground to establish their "home turf" and to let the females know they are there. They "self-anoint" themselves with secretions from their glands and urine. They spar with each other often and wallow in mud or dust. Bucks can be found traveling their rub lines and returning often to their scrapes which is a great tool for hunters to utilize during this period of time.

Here's to Happy Hunting and a very successful Rut Season in your neck of the woods!

DAPHNE — No. 1 ranked Class 1A-3A Bayside Academy's boys pulled away from cross-town rival (Class 6A's No. 7 Daphne) on Tuesday night at Freedom Field for a 5-2 home win.

The Admirals (12-0-0), who took the top spot in Class 1A-3A, have outscored opponents 75-5 as of March 13. Robert Sullivan led the Admirals with a three-goal night for the hat trick. Ben James and Cody Smart each added one for BA.

The Trojans (7-3-0) answered their early deficit with back-to-back scores by James Comerford and Spencer Ward for a 3-2 score at the half.

In the girls cross-town match the Admirals and Trojans went nil-nil into the half. Bayside's Jessie Peterson scored off a cross from Ella Cate Cooper in the 50th minute for the lead. But Marley Smith answered for DHS down the stretch for the 1-1 tie. Bayside (4-0-2) is ranked No. 6 in the latest 1A-3A coaches poll.

In 6A, Baldwin County's boys (12-0-0) and girls (10-1-1) are both ranked ninth in the coaches poll.

Brees staying with New Orleans Saints

By MICHAEL HANICH
Sports Analysis

Future Hall of Fame quarterback Drew Brees is coming back to the New Orleans Saints by resigning with the team last Tuesday. Brees signed a two-year contract worth $50 million with $27 million guaranteed as well as the Saints initiating a no-trade clause and a one-year team option, so he will likely finish his stellar career there.

Despite turning 39 years old last January, Brees is playing at a high level with the Saints and in the NFL. Last season, Brees threw for 4,334 yards on 386 completions (out of 536 attempts), 23 touchdowns, eight interceptions, a QBR of 61.1, and a passer rating 103.9. Drew Brees also set an NFL record of highest completion percentage last season by completing 72 percent of his passes.

The talk of Brees signing came a while ago but couldn't officially begin the financial structure and clauses until recently. Brees was offered a $60-million guaranteed contract from an AFC team (likely the New York Jets with their large salary cap space). The Jets and the Buffalo Bills were looking into him as their second choice after they failed to acquire free agent Kirk Cousins.

With Brees taking a more mild contract, it will leave the Saints to acquire more talented veterans for needed positions like safety, tight end, and cornerback. Former Saint Jimmy Graham was close to rejoining the Saints before striking a deal with the Green Bay Packers. With the start of free agency still fresh, New Orleans will look to acquire more talent with a more lenient cap space thanks to Brees and his new contract.

Men's College Basketball Tournament set

MICHAEL HANICH
Sports Analysis

The 2018 NCAA Men's College Basketball Tournament is underway with some games already taking place. Among the teams looking to make an impact and continue in the tournament for the National Championship title are the Auburn Tigers (25-7), the fourth-seeded team in the Midwest division of the tournament. The Tigers are coming off a disappointing SEC Championship Tournament appearance where they lost their first game to the Alabama Crimson Tide. Auburn had a 10-point lead of 41-31 going into halftime followed by allowing 50 points from the Tide in the second half. Alabama's Collin Sexton had 31 total points (3-point shooting of 6-to-8), seven rebounds, and one assist.

The Tigers offense was inefficient with a 32.3 percent field goal percentage and were outrebounded 33 to 44. Auburn had below average field goal shooting against Alabama in the second half.

Auburn is 2-4 in games after the season-ending ankle injury to their main interior defender and rebounder in Anfernee McLemore in February. Before his injury, McLemore scored 7.4 points per game, 5.3 rebounds per game and 2.7 blocks per game and a season field goal percentage of .523. McLemore was named to the 2017-2018 SEC All-Defensive Team.

With McLemore out of the lineup, Auburn will be driving to the net and the shooting from the 3-point perimeter at a faster pace. In 30 games this season, Mustapha Heron has a team-high 16.6 points per game, 5.5 rebounds per game, and 1.2 steals per game. In 31 games, Bryce Brown has 16.2 points per game, two rebounds per game, one steal per game as well as a field-goal percentage of .408 and a 3-point percentage of .387.

The No. 4-seed Auburn Tigers will play No. 13-seed Charleston Cougars (26-7) in the first round of the 2018 NCAA Men's College Basketball Tournament. FiveThirtyEight predicts that Auburn has an 80 percent chance to make it to the round of 32, a 3 percent chance to make it the Final Four and a less than 1 percent chance to win the National Championship.

Foley Women's Club hosts annual Mad Hatters' event last week

Submitted by BARBARA MCCAMISH

Crazy hats, beautiful hat — all kinds of hats showed up at the Foley Woman's Club's annual Mad Hatters' event on Thursday, March 8, at the Foley Civic Center.

With a theme of Alice's Wonderland, guests wore creative costumes and hats as they mingled among the beautifully decorated tables of various hat designs done by member Helen Lambard. The stage was lit with streaming purple lights highlighting large flowers and glowing trees.

The Club president, Chris Anglin, presented a large check of $5,000 to the Miracle League of Coastal Alabama team which is raising funds for a handicapped ball field in Summerdale.

The famous hat parade led by none other than an authenic Queen of Hearts, Tanya Blair, and joined by the many hat wearers snaked thru the tables to the audience's delight . Prizes were awarded for the best theme hat which was won by Eileen Gilding with honorable mention going to Kayla Barrett. Winner of the craziest hat was Gigi Baroco with Linda Lambert receiving honorable mention. The most glamorous hat category was won by Jordan Bodenhammer. Kelly Barrett's Mad Hatters hat received special mention for being the best homemade hat.

Entertainment was provided by "Granny" Sharon Goodwin, "Patsy Cline" Kay McVay and Christina Christian who sang the official "Miracle League" theme song written by she and her husband.

Many raffle and silent auction items provided by merchants and member donations were won by attendees. The $500 pot of gold winner was Georgia Carpenter. Fashions from Dillards, Chico's and Beach House Boutique were modeled by Club members.

A delicious seated lunch provided by L.A. Barbeque catering was served by Club members wearing specially designed aprons.

Event Coordinator, Kelly Barrett and her committee chairs of Sheila Morgan, Helen Lambard, Gloria Welytok, Sue Rich, Sharon Penton, Linda Ford, Chris Anglin, and Sylvia Womack, assisted by Club members helped make "Alice's Wonderland" a glowing success.

The members of the Foley Woman's Club thank all of the sponsors and donors for their help. Foley Woman's Club members work diligently to make the event possible — giving back to the community their primary goal. All proceeds from the event are donated to groups that provide services to women and children in Baldwin County.

We look forward to another Mad Hatters' even in 2019!

‘A Day for Science’ march announces speakers

MOBILE — Speakers for the 2018 March for Science Mobile event, “A Day for Science,” will be Dr. Kristine DeLong and Ben Raines.

Dr. DeLong is a paleoclimatologist at Louisiana State University and a featured scientist in the documentary The Underwater Forest. The 2017 film was written and directed by Ben Raines, who is a longtime journalist at AL.com and filmmaker. This stunning film documents a unique, recently-discovered ancient cypress forest that sits nine miles off the Alabama coast in 60’ of water. Dr. DeLong is leading the scientific investigation of this incredible find. The film was co-produced by Underwater Forest LLC, The Alabama Coastal Foundation, and This is Alabama!

Dr. DeLong will also bring graduate students from her lab to have a booth at the event, and will have samples of the 50,000+ year old wood for attendees to handle!

Dr. DeLong’s research is focused on climate change of the past primarily in the subtropics to tropical regions for the past 130,000 years, and her field work involves dives to recover modern and fossil coral samples. She is the lead principal investigator for projects involving sediment coring and geophysical survey field operations. She is one of a few paleoclimatologists who has published multi-century long coral-based temperature reconstructions from Atlantic and Pacific corals. DeLong has published extensively on her reconstruction work as well as on the refinement, fidelity, and data analysis methods used in paleoclimatic reconstructions.

Mr. Raines is well-known for nearly two decades of writing about environmental issues and natural wonders in Alabama, with much of that time spent as an investigative reporter for AL.com. He has also produced several documentaries about Alabama, with the most recent being The Underwater Forest. The film has received media attention from national and international news outlets such as NBC Nightly News, the BBC, The Washington Post, and NPR. Raines also produced America’s Amazon, a documentary about the Mobile River Basin that aired on PBS stations around the country. His underwater film work has appeared in documentaries on the Discovery Channel and National Geographic TV. The U.S. Coast Guard-licensed captain also runs fishing and sightseeing tours in the waters around Mobile.

A Day for Science will take place in Bienville Square on April 14, 2018 from 9am-12pm. This free open-air science fair for all ages will feature our keynote speakers, and booths with local scientists and science-based organizations, as well as local K-12 students in a science fair poster session. There will also be a sign-making contest and a Parade for Science. Participants are invited to bring their friends, kids, a spirit of fun, and their love for science.

A Day for Science gives the public a chance to meet local scientists, learn about the wide variety of fascinating science being done in our community, and advocate for the importance of science in public policy and our community. This event is an official satellite event of the national March for Science event taking place on the same day.

In 2017, the first ever March for Science had over one million participants in more than 600 cities worldwide, and the event in downtown Mobile drew an estimated crowd of 550.

If you would like more information about this year’s event, please contact Angela Jordan at 251.680.0084 or email at mobilemarchforscience@gmail.com. Please add to any event calendars you maintain.

Former U.S. Attorney Kenyen Brown joins fight to fix criminal justice system

Former U.S. Attorney Kenyen Brown of the Southern District of Alabama has joined the Law Enforcement Action Partnership (LEAP) to use his knowledge of the inner-workings of the criminal justice system to improve public safety in Alabama. His areas of expertise include ending the use of money bail and mandatory minimums, promoting alternatives to incarceration, and reducing the impact of collateral consequences of incarceration on families, to name a few. He hopes his prosecutorial experience will help Alabama as it moves forward into a new era of criminal justice.

"Prosecutors have a front row seat to how the justice system is functioning," said Brown. "This organization of current and former law enforcement professionals see the justice system for what it is — and know it can better serve us through smarter policies. I've learned that effectiveness in increasing public safety is not limited to the number of prosecutions we make or the number of people behind bars. Rather, sound enforcement policies must be coupled with proven prevention and reentry strategies, as well as an undying commitment to build community trust."

"As the first black U.S. attorney in Alabama's Southern District, Mr. Brown has already proven himself a trailblazer," said Maj. Neill Franklin (Ret.), executive director of the Law Enforcement Action Partnership and 34-year police veteran. "His perspective and years of experience will be invaluable to improving criminal justice policy in the state."

Mr. Brown can be available for interviews to discuss the following topics at your convenience:

- Restorative justice
- Parole/Probation reform
- Racial disparities in the justice system
- Ending use of civil asset forfeiture
- Sentencing reform/ending use of mandatory minimum sentences
- Ending use of money bail
- Prisoner re-entry programs
- Collateral consequences of incarceration
- Debtors' prisons/jail for nonpayment of fines

The Law Enforcement Action Partnership (LEAP) is a nonprofit group of prosecutors, judges, police, and other criminal justice professionals who use their expertise to advance public safety solutions.

Senator Doug Jones secures support for new R&D program to enhance national security

Auburn University College of Veterinary Medicine poised to fill need for threat-detecting canines

WASHINGTON, DC — U.S. Senator Doug Jones today announced he has secured support in the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee for the Canine Detection Research and Development Act legislation, a bipartisan proposal to establish a new initiative that will set uniform standards for and help address the shortage of trained threat-detection canines in the United States. Senator Jones successfully added the proposal to the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Authorization Act, which recently received committee approval in the Senate.

"Highly trained canines are the most effective tools we have to detect existing and emerging threats to our national security, but unfortunately there is a shortage of these working dogs and no organized programs to increase their numbers," said Senator Jones, a member of the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee. "My bill authorizes a research and development program to address this critical homeland security and public safety need, which I believe can be most effectively filled by the talented team at Auburn University's College of Veterinary Medicine. Auburn is at the forefront of this field and stands ready to meet this mission head-on."

Experts have warned that the U.S. is facing a shortage of threat-detecting dogs, who are trained to identify a variety of security threats in venues ranging from combat environments to shopping malls and airports, in addition to finding contraband like illegal drugs and even victims of human trafficking. They are uniquely qualified because they detect these threats with greater agility and success than robots designed to do the same work. Senator Jones' legislation will help address the need for increasingly sophisticated and rapidly evolving tactical applications of detector dogs and will also help to produce dogs that meet defined standards of operational competence.

"Man's best friend is also our best defense. We thank Senator Jones for his advocacy of expanded canine detection research and development. Auburn's canine performance sciences program has long been a leader in canine detection technology and we look forward to continuing our work to provide the nation with the best detector dogs in the world," said Dr. Steven Leath, President, Auburn University.

Auburn University has established partnerships with DHS, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Department of Defense, and other federal agencies as well as other canine research and breeding experts, and is poised to provide the needed human capital and leadership to fulfill this important mission.
