Baldwin unemployment claims jump more than 1,400 percent in a week

By GUY BUSBY

FOLEY — While unemployment claims rose across Alabama since the coronavirus was reported in the state and across the country, the rate in Baldwin County jumped at more than three times the state average, Alabama Department of Labor officials said.

During the week ending March 14, 30 Baldwin County residents filed for unemployment compensation. During the next week, 472 people filed for unemployment in Baldwin County, an increase of 1,473 percent.

Statewide, the number of claims in the same period went up 422 percent, from 1,819 to 9,490, according to Department of Labor reports.

On March 13, the first COVID-19 case was reported in Alabama. The next day, the first case was reported in Baldwin County.

Later that week, Gov. Kay Ivey ordered all Gulf beaches closed as well as restaurants restricted to carry out meals only. Since then, many other nonessential businesses have also been ordered closed.

Donna Watts, president of the South Baldwin Chamber of Commerce, said many Andrew Ray turned 8 last month. And before he did, he spent many, many days at school planning his big day with his friends.

His parents had booked a movie theater party, complete with a viewing of the newest Sonic the Hedgehog film.

Then, the coronavirus shut down his school, Bayside Academy. And then, it shut down the movie theater. Ray's birthday plans were officially shut down too.

The coronavirus has cancelled national festivals, glitzy Hollywood award shows and the summer Olympics capturing headlines around the world.

Coronavirus concerns cause surge in gun sales

By JOHN UNDERWOOD

Nelson Wingo, owner of Campbell Hardware & Sporting Goods, said gun sales at his shop in Robertsdale surged 30 to 40 percent since Wednesday, March 18.

"We've had an increase across the board,

FIRE

But it also took a toll on weddings, family reunions, field trips and birthday parties.

Cue the new heroes of this birthday tale, the Fairhope Volunteer Fire Department.

Like the good guys rescuing the day on the big screen, department volunteers headed down Ray's street Monday, with sirens blazing, lights blinking and a happy birthday sign hung on the truck just for the second grader.

He stood in his front yard, flanked by his parents who took pictures and were relieved that the local heroes had rescued their son's big day.

"I was very surprised," Ray said on the phone afterwards. "I do love fire trucks because they help fight fires."

The fire department has offered to spread birthday cheer to any child under age 12 who lives in the Fairhope VFD jurisdiction. So far the offer has been very popular and the crew is already booked to make more than a dozen birthday rides.

Ray's mother, Katie, said the family is thankful for the support.

"We just can't thank them enough. It's a volunteer fire department so these people are just going above and beyond by doing this for the kids," she said. "It really is making them feel so special at a time when everything is sort of turned upside down."

businesses in the area have been faced with a difficult choice.

"A lot of them want to stay open and keep their people working, but they just can't," she said. "They've either got to close or at least let some of their people go for now."

Watts said many local merchants are following developments in Washington, waiting to see if legislation intended to help business owners will provide assistance. "We're waiting for details, but it appears to be a moving target at this point," she said.

Charlene Haber, whose family has operated Wolf Bay Lodge since 1974, said she had to lay off more than 200 workers and close two of the three restaurants in March. Only about 10 employees are working in the Foley restaurant after the Orange Beach and Pensacola establishments were closed until the restrictions are lifted.

"We were just gearing up for spring break," Haber said. "I feel very bad for everyone. We never expected that something like this would happen."

Haber said the restaurant's Human Resources manager has worked with laid off employees to help them file unemployment and deal with the other difficulties caused by the pandemic and economic downturn. She said the company news letter has been providing instructions such as links to the Department of Labor's instructions for filing for unemployment compensation.

She said the restaurant is also continuing to operate seven days a week and providing curbside meals and a full menu.

She said that when the economy does improve and restrictions are lifted, the restaurant will be ready to pick up business again.

"We'll just have to see when that is. A fall crowd is different from a spring crowd," Haber said. "When it does happen, I think it'll be a slow start, but we'll just have to see. In the meantime, we've been blessed that our locals have always supported us."

Tara Huchison, communications director for the Alabama Department of Labor, said anyone wanting to file for unemployment should go to the department's website at www.labor.alabama.gov or call 866-234-5382.

Commission makes coronavirus policy changes

By GUY BUSBY
guy@gulfcoastmedia.com

ROBERTSDALE — In an emergency special meeting Friday, March 27, the Baldwin County Commission approved policy changes to help county departments and employees deal with the effects of COVID 19.

Starting April 1, employees will be entitled to 80 hours of sick leave if they fall under the provisions set in the federal Emergency Paid Sick Leave Act. The act includes leave if workers are subject to a federal, state or local quarantine or isolation or has been directed to self-quarantine. Leave would also be allowed if the worker has symptoms and is seeking a diagnosis or is caring for a family member under quarantine.

"We're trying to do our parts to take the steps to try to slow the spread of this or stop the spread of this," Commission Chairwoman Billie Jo Underwood said.

Commissioner Joe Davis said that during the pandemic, employees will need to be ready to fill in in other positions if co-workers can't report for duty.

"It's critical that we work together, that we use this as an opportunity to recognize how important cross training is going to be," Davis said. "There will be times where people from Department A might need to lend a hand to Department B in order to get critical things done."

One county employee was reported to have tested positive for COVID-19 and went into self-quarantine. Coworkers were advised of the report and the employee's workplace was cleaned. The woman did not have a position that put her in contact with the public, according to county officials.

Commissioners praised the work done by employees so far in dealing with the outbreak. Commissioner Charles "Skip" Gruber said the Emergency Management Agency and other departments have done well in dealing with the outbreak.

"I appreciate the work that our EMA has been doing. Not only that, all of our employees," Gruber said. "I think that they are really, really truly working hard to comply with what's going on and it's tough. It's been very tough. But, you know, they're hanging in there and we're still providing services."

Underwood also said county department heads should not attend future meetings unless required to take part. "I know that when these special meetings get called, we all think that we've got to be here," Underwood said. "If you guys, as much as we appreciate all of our staff, if you want to check with us to see if there's anything that you need to be here for, but this is a public meeting, so we're not going to tell you to stay away as long as we practice the recommended guidelines that are in place right now."

The commission also voted to authorize the chair to revise or amend the county planned response to the coronavirus pandemic policy if necessary to comply with federal or state law during the declared emergency.

but particularly with defense-type weapons," he said. "Things have started to slow down over the last day or so, particularly with ammunition because we've started running out and can't get more."

Wingo said most customers are looking for small handguns. He's also seen a jump in sales of turkey guns, both 20- and 12-gauge shotguns that come typically with short barrels.

Richard "Rick" Lowell, owner, of Rick's Gun and Pawn, said he has also seen a jump in the last week or so in sales of small handguns and shotguns at both his locations in Foley and Loxley.

"The fear is that sooner or later grocery stores are going to run out of essential items and people are going to need weapons for home defense," Lowell said, "but right now it's looking to me like stores are re-stocking."

While he's had a jump in people asking about guns, Lowell said, his biggest jump has been in ammunition sales, to the point where they've started to run out.

"We've ordered more, but our suppliers are running low, too," he said. "It's similar to what happened after Sandy Hook."

Tom Hand, owner of Gold Mine Pawn Shop in Daphne, said he also sees a similarity with the surge in gun sales after the Sandy Hook shooting in 2012, the difference being that now, the increase has been across the board.

"After Sandy Hook, more people were looking for AR-15s because they were afraid it would be outlawed," Hand said, "but today we're seeing an increase in sales across the board from the basic handgun, to the conceal-carry guns, to shotguns, which have done really good as well."

Hand believes the surge has been for numerous reasons.

"We typically see three types of people who buy guns," he said. "First, there's the person who has wanted to own a gun, but just never got around to it until something pushed them over the edge to get one. Then, there's the person who has a gun collection and is looking to add to their collection. Finally, there's the person, for whatever reason, decides to purchase a gun for their own protection. We've seen all of those."

Both Lowell and Hand expressed concerns that there could be a big increase in the number of first-time gun owners who have no experience using the weapons.

"My biggest fear is that we have people coming in to buy guns who have never owned a gun and don't have any way to get training," Lowell said. "If they're not properly trained, they're going to wind up hurting themselves. My best advice to them is as soon as they get home, read their owner's manual from cover to cover and make sure they know how to use the gun before they have to use it."

Hand said his shop has an indoor training facility on-site and he encourages everyone who purchases a weapon to get as much training as possible.

"What I like to tell people is that one day you could be called on to defend my grandchild in a movie theater," he said, "and I want to make sure you are going to be able to do that successfully."

Whatever the weapon or their experience level, anyone who purchases a gun during this time needs to be aware that it should be for home protection only.

Barbie Day, supervisor with the Civil Division of the Baldwin County Sheriff's Department, which oversees the issuance of gun permits, said the Department is currently not issuing new gun permits.

"Right now, the issuance of a new permit requires the gun owner to present in person with a photo I.D.," she said. "Since our office is currently closed, we are currently unable to issue new permits. We are trying to come up with a solution to be able to issue new permits, but we are still trying to work out the details."

The Sheriff's Department is continuing to issue permit renewals by mail, but the number of permit renewals has dropped since the permit office has been closed.

"Normally, we issue about 300 permits per week," she said. "In the last week we have issued about 50 permits."

Wingo said the public can still legally purchase a gun without a permit if that gun is considered to be for home defense, which means the gun is not allowed to leave a person's home.

"If someone were to take that gun and put it in their car, or take it to the grocery store, then they would need to have a permit," he said.

All gun sales require the purchaser to fill out a 4473 Firearms Transaction Record with the Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives (ATF) in the U.S. Department of Justice, and they have been so overwhelmed that sometimes it is taking up to three to five days to receive clearance, Wingo said.

"Most of the time, if we can file early in the morning, we can get it back the next day," he said. "Otherwise it's taking some time to get the clearance."

Hand said he's not only seen a jump in the purchase of guns, but also precious metals, particularly silver.

"This has been the best month I've ever seen in my 36 years for any kind of precious metal, that's gold, silver, lead, copper and aluminum, including guns, ammunition and bullion," he said. "I think it's more of a comfort thing than anything else. It's not that people are panicking, but people are buying these things to keep from panicking.

"I look at this the same way people are buying toilet paper. It's just something that they have to have to bring comfort during a bad situation. As long as they can find it, they feel assured that everything is going to be OK."

Foley Rotary Club honoring the "service above self" ideals to help the community

By MELANIE LECROY
melanie@gulfcoastmedia.com

Foley Rotary Club may have suspended regular club meetings, but they continue their commitment to "service about self" through an initiative to help the local community.

The club has a group of volunteers ready to help local senior citizens, those with compromised immune systems and anyone at a high risk of danger from catching COVID-19. Low risk volunteers will come by and pick up your grocery list, shop or pick up critical items and deliver them to your doorstep.

Lindsey Holmes, satellite club chairperson, said, "this initiative came from stories of people going without food and medicine in other countries during their quarantine."

The club also has an old fashion telephone tree. If you do not live locally but have an at-risk family member in the area or know someone that lives on their own, contact the club and have them added to the list. Volunteers call every few days to check in, make sure everything is OK and have a conversation.

"The phone tree has been nice because I am at home self-quarantined. I look forward to checking in with folks on my phone tree list. I try to talk about anything other than COVID-19," Holmes said.

If you live in the Foley area and are a senior citizen, have a compromised immune system or are at a high risk of danger from catching COVID-19 and need a little help with getting needed groceries or would like to be added to the phone tree call or text Lindsey Holmes at 251-233-6278.

St. Benedict students answer the call

Submitted

Mary's Shelter Gulf Coast posted on their website a request, "Be a Super Hero for our Moms and Babies". The seventh-grade students at St. Benedict Catholic School answered the call.

According to Mary's Shelter Gulf Coast Executive Director Kay Trattles, "the students spent the day recently at the Shelter and prepared 500 baby bottles for an upcoming fund raiser in Fairhope at St. Lawrence Catholic Church. The students probably don't understand how much they helped us by their work. We now find ourselves in the wake of the coronavirus pandemic and with mitigation and social distancing, we find the ability to reach large numbers of supporters limited and our financial resources stretched beyond capacity."

The fundraiser is highly visual and very impactful. The baby bottle is symbolic of the love that people have for their children and provides the sustenance that they need to grow. The funds left in the baby bottle provides the financial sustenance needed by Mary's Shelter.

"The pandemic has impacted our fundraising," said Trattles. "Our ability to work with larger organization's and distribute the baby bottles is very limited now as most churches are not meeting as part of the recommendations of the CDC and Alabama Health Officials".

Mary's Shelter Gulf Coast is a mission that serves homeless pregnant women in the South. The full scope of the MSGC program is to provide the resources to support women at their most difficult times, homeless and pregnant and to walk with them through whatever they need to become self-sufficient. This includes the full gambit of resources — housing, transportation, education, counseling, etc.

This project was conducted just a few days before the coronavirus forced school closures and limited outside school activity. St. Benedict Catholic School operates with its commitment to prayer, service and academic excellence. The "Baby Bottle Project" brings prayer, service and academic excellence into focus for the seventh graders at St. Benedict. It also shows those at Mary's Shelter that they are loved, cared for and valued for their commitment to rebuilding their lives.

St. Benedict Catholic School implemented its Distance Learning Program on Monday, March 23. Online education is set to continue through April 3 at St. Benedict or longer if the pandemic continues.

Statement issued by Archbishop Thomas J. Rodi – no Easter services

The suspension of public worship services and most church activities in the Catholic churches of the Archdiocese of Mobile is extended through April 18. The original suspension was announced on March 17.

This means that public Easter services will not be celebrated in our Catholic churches.

This is a most painful decision. Not only is Easter a time of celebration, even more importantly, the Resurrection of Our Lord is at the core of our Christian faith. However, this action is taken in the interest of the common good of our communities and is in accord with the advice of civil authorities.

The Archdiocese of Mobile consists of the Catholic churches and ministries in the 28 counties of the southern half of Alabama.

FUN ONLINE!

This week's fun activities for kids online

SUBMITTED PHOTO

Art Wide Open

The Fairhope based art studio is hosting free online story and craft sessions several days a week at 11 a.m. via Facebook live. If you miss the live feed, each session is archived on the shop's Facebook page for viewers to watch and complete at their own pace.

Virtual Girl Scouts

Girl Scouts at Home is full of activities designed to keep kids engaged and learning. Girl Scouts of Southern Alabama has teamed up with Alabama Farmers Federation, Alabama Forestry Association and NASA, to produce quality content for their viewers. Each activity allows children to engage in a new way and help them build critical skills all from the comfort of their home.

The age-specific activities for all grade levels are delivered through guided videos, text-based instructions, and downloadable information, making it seamless for families to incorporate into their daily lives. More program-based options will be added in the coming weeks, allowing girls to earn badges, tune in to live virtual events and connect online for troop meetings and projects.

The program is open to all children, and you do not need to be a member of Girl Scouts to participate.

To join in on the fun, you can follow Girl Scouts of Southern Alabama's Facebook page or simply visit their website at www.girlscoutssa.org.

Mom knows best: Fairhope mom shares advice, lessons learned and calms fears with new book

By ALLISON MARLOW
allisonm@gulfcoastmedia.com

Three years ago, Margie Sims marked an important day: she attended kindergarten registration for her youngest child. But as she looked around the room, the veteran elementary school parent said she felt a little out of place.

The 51-year-old was there to register the last of her 10 children. In the room full of 20-something moms, Sims said it was plain she was entering a new phase of her own life, while still walking along a well-weathered, well-known path.

"It takes the sting out of getting older to be able to speak to these young moms," she said.

Now Sims, of Fairhope, is doing much more than chatting with other moms at school meetings. Last fall she released her first book, "Launch: Preparing Your Kids For Takeoff," a devotional full of family stories, lessons and dreams.

Margie Sims and her 10 children.

Sims has always been a writer of parenting columns for magazines and while raising her 10 children kept a near daily blog. She dreamed of writing a book about her experience but life, or the birth of a new baby, always seemed to get in the way.

Her husband of 33 years, Robert, or Captain Fun as he is called in the stories, suggested that her book had already been written — in the tales told through her blog. Sims edited the tales into a book format and added a fitting scripture with each.

She also had all 10 of her children approve the public release of their stories. Her children currently range in age from 8 – 32. Sims also has two grandchildren.

"My seventh grader was a mischievous preschooler," she said. "He wasn't sure when we first started this process but when he read the final two stories he was ok with it."

Sims said she was inspired to write by the moms who helped guide her along her own path of motherhood.

"They taught everything to me through the lens of being a mom," she said. "I wanted to do for other moms what they did for me."

Now Sims receives messages from young moms across the country, many of them fearful and uncertain as they face the challenges of the spreading coronavirus. Sims regularly posts an excerpt of the book on her public Facebook page to help guide young moms through the day. Many of her fans say her steady hand is just what they needed.

"People, especially now, need things that are uplifting and encouraging," Sims said.

"Launch: Preparing Your Kids For Takeoff," is available locally at Page & Palette and online at Amazon where it consistently rates in the top 10 percent of the 8 million titles available.

Beach Express Bridge toll no longer accepting cash

Submitted

The Beach Express Bridge toll booth has stopped accepting cash from drivers.

American Roads LLC temporarily stopped allowing drivers to pay with cash on Monday. In going cashless, it joined other toll organizations throughout the U.S. that have stopped accepting cash as a way to limit potential COVID-19 (coronavirus) exposure to customers, staff and partners, i.e., couriers and banks.

During this time the following payment types will be accepted at the Beach Express Bridge:

- Alabama Freedom Pass
- Credit Cards
- Alabama Freedom Pass Mobile app – Apple or Android

Additional credit card readers will be available in the lanes for self-service. Drivers are asked to refer to the overhead signs at the plaza to choose your appropriate lane.

For more information, the Beach Express office can be reached at 251-968-3415 or bexoffice@beachexpress.com.

Baldwin County Animal Shelter taking steps to prepare for COVID-19 aftermath

By JESSICA VAUGHN

The rapid spread of COVID-19 has made an impact on the lives of people around the world. There are more potential victims that are sometimes overlooked in situations like this: in particular, pets. Situations like COVID-19, which has seen massive job loss around the country, could create a situation where more and more pets are left behind as owners can no longer afford them.

Luckily, Baldwin County has not seen an increase of abandoned or left behind pets, according to Baldwin County Animal Shelter Director Kim Peacock. All the same, the shelter is doing everything it can to protect against the current threat of the virus while also preparing for the future.

"Right now we are closed to the public to be able to keep my staff healthy so they can be here to take care of the animals," Peacock said. "We are working hard with approved rescue groups with their 501(c)3 that have a pretty decent foster base. Most of these organizations have an application process for someone to become a foster, so they can screen out true fosters."

Though there hasn't been an increase in pet abandonments in the county so far, Peacock fears once the pandemic is clear and everyone returns to work we could see those numbers rise.

"I'm starting to see that with schools out and people at home, they're looking for a pet companion; be it for their child to play with or because they're home alone," she said. "We're afraid of what will happen when everyone goes back to life as normal. There could be a huge influx of pet returns or people looking to rehome their pets."

By allowing rescue groups to screen their fosters, Peacock believes there's a higher chance that the animals will find good temporary homes until they find their forever homes.

Although closed to the public, local shelters are still doing what they can to get their pets adopted to forever homes or secure with foster families. Peacock and one of her staff members recently made a trip to Florida to deliver 12 dogs to ADORE Pet Rescue, using gloves, masks, and every precaution they could to protect against COVID-19 while making sure the dogs were delivered safely.

The Baldwin County Humane Society is doing adoptions by appointment only, while the Haven has set up outside appointments for adoptions. Other county shelters, such as Daphne Animal Shelter, are also reaching out to local volunteer pet rescues to set shelter pets up for adoption.

"We are trying to get as many of these animals out for adoption or to foster homes as we can," Peacock said. "We are considered a low-kill shelter, we only euthanize for major aggression or critical illness; I do not want to revert to euthanizing due to limited space, and I'm afraid we'll have to do that if there's a huge influx. So we're working to get our shelter pets to the rescue organizations so they can be fostered and adopted."

Within a week, the shelter has sent over 20 dogs out to rescue groups. Even though people cannot go into the Baldwin County Animal Shelter to adopt a pet during the pandemic, Peacock urges everyone to get in contact with a local rescue group if they are looking to adopt or foster a pet.

In the meantime, the shelter employees are making the most of the situation and have already spayed or neutered 75% of the dogs in their care. They are working to alter all their dogs during the shutdown.

"The dogs that are here are housed in individual kennels, fed twice a day, have clean water, dog beds, fans, and even heated floors during the colder months," Peacock said. "So if anyone is afraid the dogs aren't getting attention while people can't come in to adopt them, my staff is taking care of them, taking them out daily for walks, giving them playtime in the yard, and making sure these dogs are healthy and happy."

Feeling stressed during the COVID-19 pandemic?

Here's some tips to help reduce stress and maintain your mental health

By JESSICA VAUGHN

In the blink of an eye, the day to day life of many people has changed drastically. Parents are homeschooling their children for the first time, while potentially working from home themselves. Kids accustomed to a daily school routine have found themselves inside, unable to see their friends or spend the weekend enjoying the spring. The beaches have closed, and many families are finding their mental health challenged with the added load.

To top it off, the spread of COVID-19 is a concern for everyone. Those who work out of the home worry about protecting their health and preventing the spread when they return home.

All of this can cause elevated stress levels, which affects physical, mental, and emotional health.

"It is natural to experience anxiety during this uncertain time. The COVID-19 outbreak means new restrictions are in place to prevent the spread of the virus, disrupting our daily routines," said LICSW, Marketing Executive with AltaPointe Health Robin Riggins. "It can be overwhelming to deal with the significant changes in working and educating children from home. And for some, job security is also a considerable concern on top of keeping everyone healthy."

Despite the situation caused by COVID-19, there are plenty of things families can do to combat stress levels. Riggins offers a few tips that everyone can follow to help keep their stress levels low and their health high.

First and foremost, take media breaks. Stuck at home, many people find themselves on their phone or watching TV more than usual, which can lead to an overload.

"Limit you and your family's exposure to news related to the status of the coronavirus outbreak to 15 minutes a day from a credible source or enough time to remain informed about developments," Riggins said. "Instead, focus on productive tasks related to your family and work. Completing tasks and feeling productive is motivating and reduces stress. Remember, you have a choice as to where you place your attention, so make it worthwhile."

An important thing to help reduce stress is to stick to a schedule. Often when our routines are interrupted, it can be easy to slip out of it and stay up later than usual, wake at a later hour, and eat at odd times. Riggins says sticking to a routine creates a sense of normalcy, and that families need to try to maintain their typical daily routines.

Another important thing is to stop fretting over the question "what if."

"Asking what if creates anxiety related to things out of your control," said Riggins. "For example, 'what if I made contact with an infected person at the grocery store?' Quickly redirect your thinking by putting it into perspective and reminding yourself of the preventative measures you are taking and acknowledge that you cannot control certain things. Acknowledge what you can control and move in that direction."

Another way to create a sense of normalcy is to prevent social isolation. Talk to people over the phone instead of texting, or set up a FaceTime or Zoom chat so you can talk to friends and loved ones "face to face."

It's also important to stay active and on the move, even if it's inside your home. Riggins says dancing to your favorite music or creating games related to movement can vastly help during the pandemic, even if the game is as simple as jogging around your home during commercials.

To everyone with children who are dealing with the loss of the schoolyear and unable to see their friends, there are plenty of things that can be done to help.

"Pay attention to your response and remain calm and reassuring," Riggins said. "Children take their cues from you. Model healthy coping and emphasize that this is temporary. Also make an extra effort to be available and "present" with your kids. Listen and talk with them without all the usual distractions. We naturally get caught up in busy everyday routines without realizing how disconnected we become with our loved ones."

Riggins says parents can also share with their children accurate information that is appropriate for their age. Left without accurate information, children will allow their imagination to fill in the blanks for them, which can lead to anxiety and fear.

And if the situation takes too hard a toll on your mental health, help is available.

"If you need assistance in coping with your anxiety, consider contacting BayView Professional Associates, AltaPointe Health's private counseling program at 251-660-2360," Riggins said. "Ask about our phone/telehealth services. Those who experience mental health conditions may be struggling more than usual during these times of uncertainty. If you are struggling, contact your local mental health provider to process your options."

Alfa Insurance® helps Alabama customers impacted by COVID-19

"We understand many customers' jobs have been impacted by efforts to contain the COVID-19 pandemic," said Alfa Insurance® President and CEO Jimmy Parnell. "The health and economic challenges facing our country are unprecedented, and we all must work together to defeat the virus and help our neighbors. We're grateful for loyal customers and blessed to have the financial strength to help them weather this storm."

Alfa® is offering to temporarily suspend policy cancellations due to non-payment of premium and waive late fees for policyholders in Alabama facing financial strain due to COVID-19.

The extended grace period is available for Alfa automobile, property and life insurance policies. Hardship requests are being reviewed based on individual circumstances. Customers facing financial difficulty should contact their agent or local service center.

As essential critical infrastructure, Alfa offices remain open and continue to serve customers, by appointment only. Customers also can make payments, file a claim, access auto ID cards or request policy changes by registering their policies at AlfaInsurance.com, calling 1-800-964-2532 or through the Alfa2Go® mobile app.

Parnell said Alfa's response to the COVID-19 pandemic is based on its core values of faith, family, community and integrity.

"When disaster strikes, Alfa is the first to answer the call," Parnell said. "While the disruption caused by COVID-19 is not a natural disaster, we realize the devastating impact it's having on our neighbors and communities. We're happy to be a part of easing the immediate impact from this pandemic."

In addition to payment relief, Alfa offers automobile discounts for many who serve their communities, including military, first responders, teachers, farmers and state and federal employees. Contact a local Alfa Insurance office for more information.

Edward Jones: Support for community is a top priority

In today's challenging times, Edward Jones financial advisors are thinking about the health of their clients, their families and their colleagues, what's happening in their communities and the effect of COVID-19 on the markets.

"Most importantly, we want everyone to know we're taking steps to protect the health and well-being of our clients, associates, families and communities," Lisa Cooper says. "We're right here in the community with you, going through this together as neighbors and friends. And we will get through this together."

To help reduce the impact of the coronavirus, financial advisors are taking several steps, including suspending face-to-face residential visits with clients, holding "virtual" meetings and training sessions and ensuring office spaces are sanitized and disinfected.

"Like everyone, we really have to do our part to help mitigate this crisis," Cooper says. "But since our entire reason for being in business is to help our clients enjoy more rewarding lives, we feel that our efforts now are just an extension of that." Of course, people's financial situations also weigh on their minds.

"The current market selloff is certainly concerning, but it seems to be driven more by fear and panic than by economic or financial reality," Cooper says.

Monetary and fiscal policy are necessary, but at the end of the day, it will be the medical progress that will dictate the timeline for reducing market volatility and the ultimate rebound in stocks. Cooper said Edward Jones expects daily volatility to persist until new virus cases begin to slow, but added that investors should find optimism in these facts: prior to the epidemic, unemployment was near a 50-year low, with solid wage growth; there was an uptick in the housing market, which may accelerate due to declining mortgage rates; and the Federal Reserve has cut short-term interest rates back near 0%. Furthermore, the drop in investment prices may indicate that the financial markets have already "priced in" the likelihood of a short-term recession.

"This could mean that we've already endured much of the stock market pain," Cooper says. "And even a short recession is of concern to all of us, since it's likely to bring at least a temporary disruption to an otherwise strong labor market."

For investors wondering what to do now, Cooper offers these suggestions:

First, remember why you're investing. "With the market decline, people will be tempted to change their investment strategies," Cooper says. "But they need to keep in mind that most of their financial goals, such as a comfortable retirement, are long-term in nature — a lot longer-term than the shelf life of the coronavirus. If investors have established a long-term strategy that's appropriate for their needs, they should stick with it, no matter what today's headlines are."

However, Cooper does suggest that individuals who are particularly concerned over the current results of their investment statements might want to evaluate their risk tolerance. "If you are truly losing sleep over what's going on in the markets, it's possible your portfolio is positioned too aggressively for the amount of risk with which you're comfortable," Cooper says. "In that case, you should work with your financial advisor to see if you need to adjust your investment mix to include more fixed-income securities, which can provide some downside protection, but you'll be making a trade-off, because you'll also be affecting your long-term growth potential."

Finally, Cooper says, now might actually be a good time for investors to consider actually adding to their portfolios. "Right now, many stocks are at their best values in more than a decade," Cooper says. "If you need to rebalance your portfolio, this could be a time to do so."

Ultimately, Cooper says, investors need to realize that, while we are in somewhat uncharted times, the temptation to panic should be fought. "All our emotions are running high right now," Cooper says. "And while everyone's top priority should be to protect themselves, their families and their communities, it's still important not to lose sight of their financial well-being. And for that, the best thing all of us can do is look past short-term downturns and maintain the discipline to keep investing in all types of markets."

Phelps resigns as Cardinals head football coach

Veteran multi-sport teacher/ coach will stay on as assistant athletic director

By TONY WHITEHEAD

FAIRHOPE — Coach Scott Phelps, founding head football coach at St. Michael Catholic High School, resigned on Monday. The decision was announced online via St. Michael Catholic High Cardinals News (StMichaelCHS.org) on March 30. He retains his position on the faculty and will transition to assistant athletic director for the 2020-21 school year.

"My wife and I think this is the right time," Phelps says. "I've been coaching for 38 years now, and our youngest son is graduating from St. Michael next month. The freshman (class) I coached in our first year here will graduate in May. Our spring season has been canceled due to the coronavirus — put that all together, and we just think this is the best time to make the transition."

Phelps met with St. Michael's principal Faustin Weber on Friday and offered his resignation. In a follow-up meeting on Monday, Weber asked Phelps to become SMCHS' assistant athletic director. Phelps told his assistant coaches about the changes Monday evening and then met with his team via video conference.

St. Michael athletic director Paul Knapstein said Phelps is handing off a strong foundation for success on and off the field.

"I will be eternally grateful to Coach Phelps for starting our football program," Knapstein said. "His work ethic was a positive example to our young men. Coach Phelps took a group of young, inexperienced first-time football players and in four short years made them a competitive group on the field.

"The level of improvement from year to year our team showed was simply incredible. Coach Phelps has put our team in a position to succeed in the future."

Weber said Phelps contributions went beyond the gridiron.

"Coach Phelps didn't just begin football here," he said. "In a very real way, he is a co-founder of our athletic program. He was the only P.E. teacher in our first year, our only football coach on staff, our only weight coach, our first baseball coach, our only bus driver.

"With just 99 students in the school, less than half of whom were boys, he started football, with 13 eligible players and five other kids who were ineligible for 18 months because they transferred. We began with no field to practice on, no equipment, no schedule, no traditions. He's been a strong Christian role model to our young men — a 'guy's guy.'

"I am pleased he has accepted my offer to stay here and assist our athletic director Paul Knapstein. Our program has grown very large since 2016 – we now have over 20 varsity programs, with additional J.V. and middle school teams."

St. Michael will begin the search for Phelps' replacement immediately. Interested coaches should send a cover letter and resume to SMCHS athletic director Paul Knapstein at PKnapstein@stmichaelchs.

As the original 13 players progressed, the Cardinals football team posted three wins in the 21 varsity games Phelps led. The 2019 team defeated county rival and fellow new program Elberta as well as perennially strong, though small McIntosh for the gridiron Cardinals' first multi-win season. St. Michael's competed in the AHSAA's Class 3A division in 2018 and last year but will move up to Class 4A this fall.

In his years as a head coach in Alabama. Phelps went 103-46 in 12 years at Leroy where he led the Bears to the AHSAA Class 2A state title in 2004 and won six region championships. At Robertsdale, he and the Golden Bears went 13-47 in six seasons in one of the toughest regions in the state year-in-year out: Class 6A, Region 2.

The early days at St. Michael's were spartan. The team, which was without its own weight room or practice field held their weight training at the YMCA in Daphne and outdoor workouts at Al Trione Park down the street. The situation didn't deter some.

Sophomores Jacob Domning and Michael Brown transferred from McGill-Toolen Catholic, breaking long-standing family traditions.

"I wanted to play because I liked the idea of being the first team and setting the foundation," Domning said.

Brown, who also played basketball for the school, said he couldn't pass up the opportunity to start a new tradition.

"I just wanted to be part of the first graduating class," he said. "And to help build a football and basketball program."

Former Daphne defender leaves Ravens for Vikings

By MICHAEL HANICH
Sports Analysis

After spending the first four seasons of his NFL career with the Ravens, former Daphne Trojan Michael Pierce took advantage of NFL free agency to sign a three-year deal with the Minnesota Vikings worth $27 million.

Pierce was an essential piece for the Ravens' defense this past season that was ranked third in the league in points allowed per game (17.6) and fifth in rushing defense (93.4 rushing yards allowed per game. Pierce had 35 total tackles, 19 solo tackles, two tackles for loss and three quarterback hits in the 14 games he played and started in. He was more impactful than the previous season with the Ravens when he played in 14 games and started in two of them.

The Minnesota Vikings took an interest in Pierce after deciding to move on from one-technique defensive tackle Linval Joseph. Pierce played the nose tackle in Baltimore where he was consistently set right in front of the center.

While Baltimore has a 3-4 defensive front, Minnesota has a 4-3 defensive front, which is the same defensive front that he had in college with the Samford Bulldogs. Pierce will likely play the one-technique defensive tackle, a position that Pierce is highly familiar with. While he played great in multiple scenarios with the Ravens, he can display more versatility by playing in multiple packages as a three-technique as well.

The Vikings getting their position need at defensive tackle taken care of will allow them to draft other main position needs like cornerback or defensive/ outside linebacker. The Vikings have two first-round picks in the upcoming 2020 NFL Draft on April 23 after trading wide receiver Stefon Diggs to the Buffalo Bills.

AHSAA director memo on sports cancellations

Former Daphne coach/AD Steve Savarese expresses sadness, disappointment for all impacted by coronavirus and precaution

'We are committed to putting the health, safety, and overall well-being of our administrators, coaches, and student-athletes at the forefront during this challenging time, and our priorities must focus on returning to a normal school year in 2020-21 and graduating the seniors of 2020.'

STEVE SAVARESE
Executive Director AHSAA

MONTGOMERY — Like thousands of others, I am deeply saddened and disappointed that our schools have closed, and spring sports will not have an opportunity to finish their seasons. Even more so, I am disheartened for all student-athletes, contest officials, their coaches, families, student bodies, fans, communities, and especially our seniors. We are facing an unprecedented health crisis, but I am prayerful that the steps we are taking now within our schools and across our nation will enable all those affected to return to a sense of normalcy sooner than later.

I'm extremely grateful to all our educators who will utilize tele-communications and other ingenious methods to continue to educate our students as well as keep our student-athletes conditioned.

Moreover, I'm grateful to all those within our medical communities who are serving those in need. In particular, now more than ever, I am thankful for the leadership of the AHSAA medical advisory board and Central Board of Control.

Lastly, all the steps we are taking now will be for naught if we each fail to do our part, and our responsibility is to follow the recommendations of our health care professionals. My prayer is that we will all take seriously the Alabama Department of Public Health guidelines so our families can once again return to work, visit loved ones in the hospital and nursing homes, celebrate birthdays, weddings, and births of children, visit and hold our grandchildren, shop, travel and just enjoy the simple things of everyday life we often take for granted. Until those guidelines are lifted, we must heed these cautions thus not allowing this health issue to affect future school years.

God Bless, SS

The AHSAA director also released the latest memo that covers many questions about future activities. So what's next? What about spring evaluations, summer practices, competitions, camps, and fall practice? (Including future practices). HOROSCOPES

WEEK OF APRIL 6, 2020

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You might be upset about having to deal with problems that are no fault of your own. But you can turn the annoyance into an asset by showing how quickly and how well you can resolve them.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) The Bovine's fondness for tidiness pays off when you untangle a situation that seems hopelessly snarled. You might later be surprised to learn who will be expressing his or her gratitude.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Although you can tackle your assignment the way you prefer, it might be a good idea to at least ask for suggestions. Who knows? One or two might even turn out to be helpful.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Make all the changes in your plans or proposals that you feel are necessary before — repeat, before — you submit them to your colleagues. You'll come off looking more decisive that way.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You might feel a mite intimidated in a new environment, be it a job, a classroom or meeting the future in-laws. But enter with a big smile, and everyone will see you as a real take-charge Cat.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This could be a romantic time for you if you can set aside your cynicism and let yourself believe that someone really cares. If you're already in a relationship, expect your partner to be extra-loving.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) It's a good time to shed any doubts about your abilities. You've proved yourself in the past, so why not accept that you'll do just as well, or better, in dealing with the new challenge ahead?

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your suspicions might be on the mark, but unless you can prove what you assume, you need to exercise that Scorpion discretion and let events unfold without your assistance.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Be careful not to go over the top this week. Avoid overeating (especially of the wrong foods), or drinking too much, or working too hard. You can do it all, but in moderation.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A family matter is given to you to resolve because you have the gift for bringing quarrelsome kinfolk together. But while you're playing Dr. Phil, don't neglect your career obligations.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Someone of importance shares your goals but disagrees with your plan to achieve them. Never mind. Defending your methods with logic and facts earns you admiration and respect.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Consider getting away, perhaps for the weekend, despite all the demands made on your time and energies. You'll return refreshed and ready to tackle it all with your usual finesse.

Opinion

WHEN YOU'RE ON YOUR OWN, WE ARE THERE WITH YOU.

As the United States faces the worst public health crisis in a generation, we want you to know we are here for you — and with you.

Whatever happens, whenever it happens, your newspaper will be there for you. We'll be there to let you know how our community is managing through this crisis — from business to government to the health care system and schools to the drastic impact on individuals and families.

And, we'll be there to let you know about the good and extraordinary things happening in the midst of this crisis — the way people in our community are coming together to help health workers, the city and nonprofit workers attending to the homeless community, the volunteers bringing food to and shopping for the elderly people who cannot leave their homes, and the health workers putting themselves in harm's way to care for the sick.

Amidst the sadness and anxiety, there are uplifting moments that remind us of the resilience of the human spirit, and we'll be there to document those too.

We are here to help you make sense of the situation and to help you navigate it.

Having fact-based, reliable reporting that provides public scrutiny and oversight is more important than ever. Together, across the decades, this newspaper and its readers have navigated horrific events — natural disasters, terrorism, financial downturns, periods of extreme political and societal division.

This challenge is greater than any of those, but, rest assured, we'll be here for you. We are a resilient community where people come together to build and rebuild. Let's stick together, and we will come through this, too.

The 1964 Goldwater Landslide was the beginning of Republican dominance of the south

STEVE FLOWERS
Inside the Statehouse

Our primary runoffs have been postponed until July 14, 2020. It was a wise and prudent decision by Secretary of State John Merrill and Gov. Kay Ivey. Most voters are older and you are asking them to come out and vote and at the same time stay home.

The main event will be the GOP runoff for the U.S. Senate. The two combatants, Jeff Sessions and Tommy Tuberville, will now square off in the middle of a hot Alabama summer. The winner will be heavily favored to go to Washington. We are a very reliably Republican state especially in a presidential election year.

Many of you have asked, "When did Alabama become a dominant one-party Republican state?" Well it all began in the Presidential year of 1964. The 1964 election was the turning point when the Deep South states of Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia, Louisiana and South Carolina voted for Barry Goldwater and never looked back. It was the race issue that won southerners over for Goldwater. The Republican Party captured the race issue that year and have never let go of it.

The South which was known as the "Solid South" for more than six decades, because we were solidly Democratic, are today known as the "Solid South" because we are solidly Republican. Presidential candidates ignore us during the campaign because it is a foregone conclusion that we will vote Republican, just as presidential candidates ignored us for the first 60 years of the 20th Century, because it was a foregone conclusion that we were going to vote Democratic.

George Wallace had ridden the race issue into the Governor's office in 1962. It had reached a fever pitch in 1964. Democratic President, Lyndon Johnson, had passed sweeping Civil Rights legislation which white southerners detested.

The only non-southern senator to oppose the Civil Rights legislation was Republican Senator Barry Goldwater of Arizona. When the Republican Party met at the old Cow Palace in San Francisco, they nominated Goldwater as their 1964 presidential candidate. Johnson annihilated him, nationwide, but Goldwater won the South in a landslide.

Before that fall day in November of 1964, there was no Republican Party in Alabama. There were no Republican officeholders. There was no Republican primary. Republicans chose their candidates in backroom conventions. Except for a few Lincoln Republicans in the hill counties, it was hard getting a white Alabamian even to admit they were Republican.

That all changed in 1964. Goldwater and the Republicans became identified with segregation and the white Southern voter fled the Democratic Party en masse. As the Fall election of 1964 approached the talk in the country stores around Alabama was that a good many good ole boys were going to vote straight Republican even if their daddies did turn over in their graves. Enterprising local bottling companies got into the debate and filled up drink boxes in the country stores labeled Johnson Juice and Gold Water. The Gold Water was outselling the Johnson Juice 3-to-1.

Alabamians not only voted for Barry Goldwater but also pulled the straight Republican lever out of anger towards Lyndon Johnson's Civil Rights agenda. Most of Alabama's eight-member Congressional delegation, with more than 100 years of seniority was wiped out by straight ticket Republican voting on that November 1964 day.

Earlier that year, Lyndon B. Johnson, the toughest, crudest, most corrupt and yes most effective man to ever serve in the White House, made a profound statement. As he signed the Civil Rights Bill he had pushed through Congress, he looked over at the great Southern Lion, Richard Russell of Georgia, and as Senator Russell glared at Johnson with his steel stare, Lyndon said, "I just signed the South over to the Republican Party for the next 60 years." Johnson's words were prophetic.

Folks, beginning with the 1964 election, there have been 17 presidential elections counting this year. If you assume that Donald Trump carries our state in November, that is a safe assumption, Alabama has voted for the Republican nominee 16 out of 17 elections over the past 56 years. Georgia peanut farmer, Jimmy Carter, is the only interloper for the Democrats in 1976.

The U.S. Senate seat up this year was first won by a Republican in 1996. That Republican was Jeff Sessions.

So folks, in 1964, Alabama became a Republican state and it happened in what was called the Southern Republican "Goldwater Landslide."

See you next week.

The Gene: An Intimate History

A book of the same title by Pulitzer Prize-winning author Dr. Siddhartha Mukherjee forms the basis for this two-part, four-hour documentary, which concludes next week at the same time. The film looks at some recent developments in the field of genetics, where new technologies offer great promise, as well as extreme peril in the form of grave moral implications. A chief worry is that scientists will take gene-editing technology too far, using it to modify germline DNA to enhance certain traits deemed "preferable."

Evaluating their efforts are this episode's judges, Maneet Chauhan, Scott Conant and Marc Murphy.

One of cable's most successful sitcoms returns for Season 3, which sees its main character, Tray (Tracy Morgan), in dire need of a new place to live, since his food truck went up in flames during Season 2. Landing in Brooklyn with no means of support, Tray begins to give "hood legend" walking tours of the gentrified borough that keeps changing almost before his eyes. Elsewhere, Shay (Tiffany Haddish) gets a promising business opportunity. Ryan Gaul, Allen Maldonado, Taylor Mosby and Anna Maria Horsford also are featured.

'The Food Ranger' scopes out authentic Asian street food on CuriosityStream

Travel with Trevor James and you'll likely find yourself changing countries with regularity.

While he's based (at the moment) in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, the Vancouver native and his wife Ting have in past five years traveled all over Asia, the Middle East and Mexico to bring his YouTube subscribers the best in authentic regional cuisine with an emphasis on street food on "The Food Ranger."

Now, the series comes to CuriosityStream, where in 12 episodes he explores the culinary scenes in China and India, two of his favorite cuisines. In those countries, he samples (among other comestibles) dumplings, noodles and crepes in the ancient silk city of Xi'an, China; dum biryani in Hyderabad, India; seafood and scrambled eggs in Mumbai; and smoked duck, tripe salad and spicy pork brain in Chengdu, China, a hotbed of Szechuan cuisine.

"I remember the first time I traveled to Chengdu," James says. "The spice was really nice but it's more about the fragrance and how unique the food is there. And of course, the people are so friendly. The people are so friendly in China and in Chengdu it was even more so. I found a relaxed atmosphere. It was a really nice place to live and Szechuan cuisine is spicy and delicious and I really fell in love with it. I'll never forget the first bowl of hot chili oil wontons."

Indeed, those Chinese dumplings look sumptuous on screen and James says they taste even better. And best, a typical meal costs only a few dollars in U.S. currency.

"One of my favorite meals in China ... is the wonton and the dandan noodle and the zha jiang noodle and their use of chili oil and peppercorn, and it's just so delicious.," James says. "Everywhere you go, little street stalls, little hole-in-the-wall restaurants, you can order up chili oil wontons and you can order up dandan noodles and it's just incredible, really delicious. ... I would always hit the street and go for Chengdu noodles and Chengdu wontons whenever we lived there."

James and his wife, who also is his videographer, are literally a force of two who typically spend two weeks in a location shooting episodes and then move on to the next. With no formal base, the road is this couple's home and because of that they have an ambitious plan going forward.

Grant Wilson and the rest of the "Ghost Hunters" team return for their second season, which opens with "Terror Town Part 1," a two-part premiere airing tonight in two back-to-back episodes. This outing finds the paranormal investigators in the remote mining town of Clifton, Ariz., where a small populace still lives despite a violent and tragic history since the town was founded in 1873. Paranormal activity here seems to be on the rise now, so the locals feat their town may be under a curse.

OF 'THE GOOD FIGHT' ON CBS ALL ACCESS

With Season 4 of "The Good Fight" starting, do you get much of an advance indication of where your character is going?

One never knows with Robert and Michelle (King, the show's co-creators and executive producers). Every time a script comes down, we're all scrambling to read it as quickly as possible, because we just never know where the plot's going ... which makes it exciting for us.

Given your successful stage career, is it the expected joy for you that you get to get musical on "The Good Fight" on occasion?

Well, any time you can get a chance to sort of explore another little facet of your character, another little nugget that makes up who (that person is), it's illuminating. And I think the wonderful thing that Robert and Michelle have done with this show is, maybe you could say this is a legal procedural, but you really can't because it's not just a drama. It's not just a comedy. It's not just satire.

It's also hyperrealistic, and then sometimes, it goes into this sort of supernatural (area). It's everything. And they continue to push the boundaries of what the show can be, so with that, we are allowed to continue to sort of grow and expand. Also, because we are on CBS All Access, there's kind of no limit in terms of how we choose to tell the story – or how Robert and Michelle choose to tell the story, because we're being given that freedom to do so.

You've had a variety of guest stars playing judges. Do any stand out for you in particular?

Chris Sullivan ("This Is Us"). It was very difficult to keep straight faces in working with him. He was so much fun, and he just walked that fine line too. It wasn't buffoonish, what he was doing, but it was just enough. I thought he was brilliant.

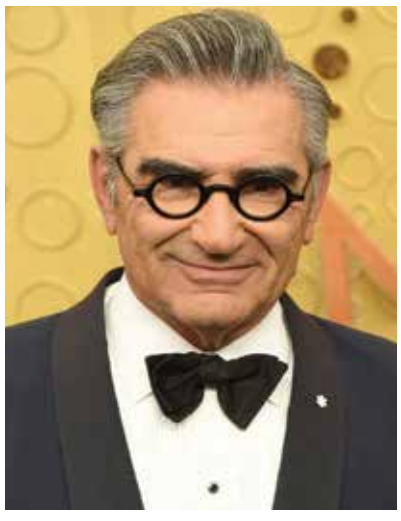
OF 'SCHITT'S CREEK' ON POP TV



As "Schitt's Creek" comes to the end of its six-season run, how do you reflect on working with your son Dan in both of your roles as major creative forces on the show?

I realized, very early on, that he was way ahead of where I was – and (I thought), "You can take this mentoring thing and just stick it in your back pocket, because I think he has got a good handle on it. Step back, and give him room to do what he has to do."

How do you view the arc of the series' success?

The show started out as a character-driven comedy, and in order to be a success, we had to get to a point where the audience had an emotional investment in the characters. And once we knew we were hitting that, even in the first season, that's where you can really take the audience on a lovely ride ... because you can really get that roller coaster of laughs and emotion happening. To me, it always is the best kind of comedy to do, where the characters are real and the situations are kind of real and everything is grounded

You and "Schitt's Creek" co-star Catherine O'Hara also worked together on "SCTV." How do you compare the two experiences?

We loved "SCTV." We were younger, we were the inmates running the asylum, and it was fun. But it did have a cult-show status, and this show kind of had a cult-show status when we were starting, but the experience of now going beyond cult-show status is kind of a new experience. And it's nice.

It's nice to be able to kind of bookend a career with something that gives you as much joy. And the quality of work is, to me, really outstanding on the show. It's an amazing cast, and our writing is amazing, and Dan's done an amazing job. So, they've both been highlights. No question.

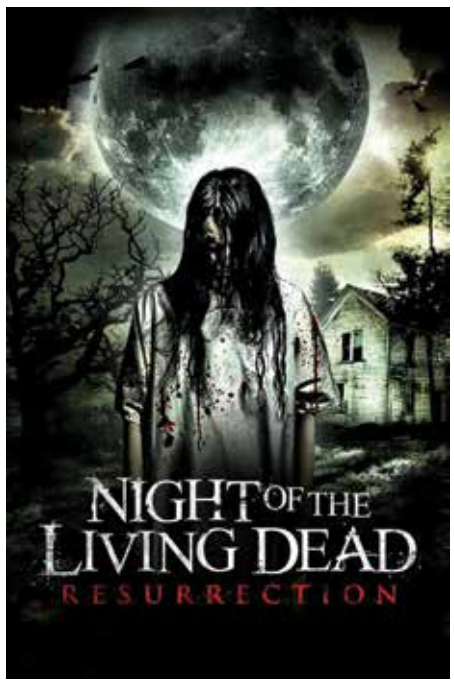
"Movie: Cantinflas"

The prolific Mexican comedian/producer/writer/singer best known for his role of Passepartout in "Around the World in 80 Days" is the subject of this 2014 biopic from director Sebastian del Amo ("The Mongolian Conspiracy"), which puts Óscar Jaenada ("Loving Pablo") in the title role. Michael Imperioli ("The Sopranos"), Bárbara Mori ("Inspiracion") and Adrian Herrera ("The Little Couple") are also in the cast.

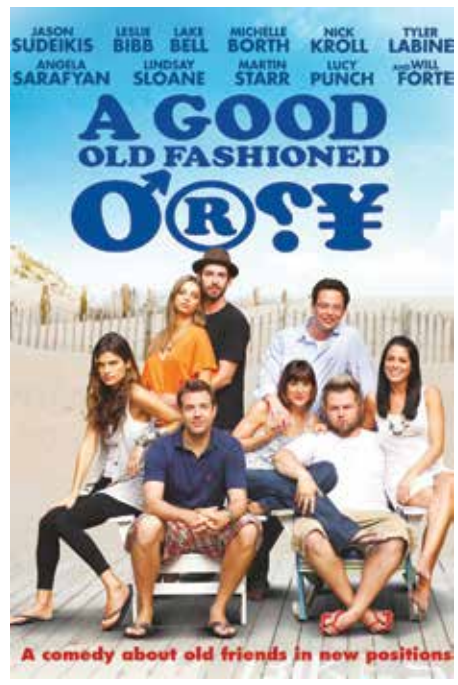


"Movie: Night of the Living Dead: Resurrection"

From Great Britain comes this 2012 horror movie about a family struggling to survive when the dead rise during a zombie apocalypse. Sule Rimi, Kathy Saxondale, Lee Bane, Richard Goss and Mel Stevens head the cast of unknowns for director James Plumb ("Silent Night, Bloody Night: The Homecoming").

"Movie: Man on a Ledge"

This 2012 melodrama stays true to its title, though there's a bit more to it. Sam Worthington plays the man perched on a New York ledge, an ex-cop who's the prime suspect in a diamond theft. As his precarious position draws the attention of the media and a police negotiator (Elizabeth Banks), his brother (Jamie Bell) works across the street on a plan to clear his name and expose the true culprits. Kyra Sedgwick, Ed Harris and Edward Burns also star.



"Movie: A Good Old Fashioned Orgy"

The title indeed describes the central event in this comedy, with Jason Sudeikis ("Saturday Night Live") heading the cast as a fellow whose legendary summer parties are on the verge of ending, for a variety of reasons. He decides to stage a final pull-out-all-stops gathering, but he has trouble getting the usual attendees to commit to return. The acting ensemble includes Sudekis' former "SNL" crony Will Forte as well as Leslie Bibb, Lake Bell and Tyler Labine.

BEST GAME SHOW HOSTS

Dick Clark

Bob Eubanks

Alex Trebek

Dick Clark ("The $10,000 Pyramid") The award amount of the title increased from $10,000 to $25,000 over the course of this game show's nearly two-decade run, but one thing remained constant: the multitalented Clark and his smooth stewardship of the action.

Bob Eubanks ("The Newlywed Game") Eubanks' devilish sense of humor was the perfect fit for this show that had several incarnations over the years, as he would use the intimate details couples would reveal about themselves as opportunities to tease – but always with good nature.

Craig Ferguson ("Celebrity Name Game") In an age where stand-up comedians get the lion's share of game-show hosting jobs, this Scottish comic stood out, directing the action with fun and a quick wit and never failing to mine the humor from a given situation. A pleasure to watch and a game show that, sadly, died before its time.

Art Fleming ("Jeopardy!") He was the original face of the venerable quiz show in its first incarnation from 1966 to '73, always providing a steady, affable presence. He might have had a longer run had he accepted Merv Griffin's invitation to host it when it was revived in 1984, but he declined the offer.

Peter Marshall ("Hollywood Squares") As the host of one of television's most successful game shows, Marshall exuded class and showed an ability to match wits with the funny men and women (and sometimes puppets) who cracked wise in the nine squares of the show's unusual set.

Gene Rayburn ("The Match Game") Yes, the humor was often sophomoric but the genial Rayburn made an excellent straight man for the celebrity cut-ups on the show's panel. And he did it for nearly 3,000 episodes.

Alex Trebek ("Jeopardy!") The show's host since its revival in syndication in '84, this Canadian has projected the image of a thoughtful, erudite moderator over its more than 8,000 episodes.

Chuck Woolery ("Love Connection," "Wheel of Fortune") He's been an actor, singer, musician and wine consultant, and hosted other game and talk shows, but the quick-witted Woolery found his greatest success as the moderator of "Love Connection" during its first incarnation from 1983 to 1994.
